Jackson Lily's

By Ginger Moon

JACKSON LILY'S – WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Jackson and Lily are my son and daughter. Besides my Kids, and their Mum (my Balinese wife Baya) being the most important people in my life, they are like my menus, all a little bit East meets West!

Luckily for me, all four of us are mad keen on eating great food, especially the modern Asian kind. I've spent all my adult life working in the kitchens of some of the world's great restaurants, hotels and resorts. Blending the East and West is an adventurous style of cooking that captivated me early in my career and is still something I find exhilarating today.

"It's a sharing thing" is the driving culture and ambition of all Ginger Moon Restaurants. We believe that whenever people share a meal with friends, family or loved ones, this is when they are at their happiest.

Jackson and Lily already take a healthy interest in our restaurants. We hope that in time, they will nurture and cherish our venues as much as Baya and I do.

Thank you for choosing Jackson Lily's – Baya, Jackson, Lily, and I hope you really enjoy your meal and sharing the Jackson Lily experience.

It's a sharing thing!

A word from Jackson and Lily:

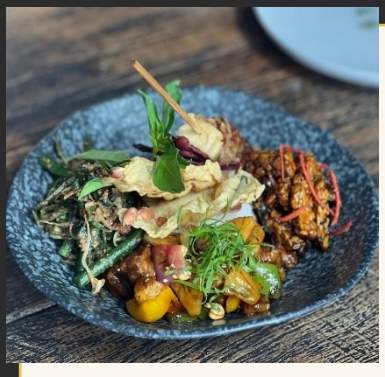

"Many of our guests would like to say " thank you" to their waiter, so Lily and me thought we'd explain how to in I Indonesian and Balinese".

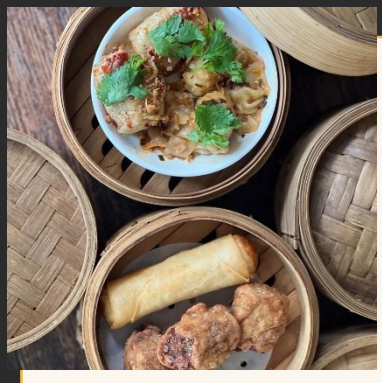

"Here's how in Indonesian: Terima Kasih (pronounced Terry Mak Assih)"

"Here's how in Balinese: Matur Suksma (pronounced Mat-Ur Suk Sa Ma)"
