Arak or tuak is Bali's traditional spirit, used in both ceremony and celebration across the island. There are inscriptions on stones about the making of tuak in Indonesia that date back to the 14th century. Made by fermenting rice, sweet potato or fruit, a high-quality arak is something to behold.

"Never before a Distilled Spirit was made this good in this part of the Archipelago"

A tedious and time-consuming process. From selecting the best local material, crafting the fermentation to precise distillation, and aging before bottling. An elegant approach to developing a new local spirit. Karu Sotju is located at the foothills of Mount Batukaru Bali. The fermentation of sweet potatoes and spring water from the rainforest results in a sincere, balanced, and complex spirit.
